QUITE TRUE.

THE newspaper of the future will have to be written not by boy reporters but by trained experts—each a specialist in his line. The Scientific American complains about the way the daily newspapers mangle scientific matter. They will hire at high cost experts to write up baseball daily; they will also employ trained men to write their dramatic and book reviews, etc., but when it comes to treating scientific subjects they seem to think anything will do. Much of the so-called "science" of the average newspaper is distorted almost beyond recognition and the inaccuracies recorded prove plainly enough that neither writers, editors, compositors or proof-readers know anything about the subject. Scientists indeed are so suspicious of all "popular" presentations of scientific matter that they will seldom give anything out for publication. The Journal of American Medicine, speaking on this same theme, mourns the lack of medical knowledge among newspaper men. It cites many examples of the most absurd statements, from the medical point of view, in the newspapers. On the other hand, if the newspapers had to present medical and other scientific matters in technical language to suit specialists in each particular subject, the public would never read the articles. The public does not want to be troubled too much with the abstruse technical side of such things; it has to content itself with generalities. Nevertheless the day is coming when the standards of newspaper writing will be very much raised, so that readers may feel sure that what they are reading on any subject is at least fairly accurate. There are many times too many newspapers and other periodicals now and they are thrown together in such haste that the wonder is they are on the whole so reliable.

Flour is to be on the free list, while wheat is to be taxed. Naturally, the border state mills which desire to use Canadian wheat will move over to Canada. Meat will be on the free list, while cattle are taxed. Wool will be free and sugar will be free in three years. Our diminishing wool industry will diminish faster and our beet sugar factories will go out of business.

What our citrus growers and other fruit growers will think after this law gets fairly into operation we do not know, but we guess they will think that they were consummate asses to leave the Republican party and trail off after the googoo band wagon.

What the Senate will do with these and similar items remains to be seen, but it looks, as to most of them, as if Democratic, as well as Republican Protectionists, would have to take their medicine. Democrats from the Southern manufacturing states are horrified to find that they are expected to stand pat on the Free-Trade doctrine, which they were fools enough to put into their platform.—San Francisco Chronicle.

They gave women votes in Australia fifteen years ago and the result was that labor members of parliament were elected by the votes of laborers' wives. That was good for Australia. In England, if the women got votes, members of parliament would be elected who would, in a short time, so cut down the appropriations for battleships, etc., that England would be up against it, good and hard. That is the real reason for the opposition shown the proposed measure.

Raw wool is to go on the free list. Raw wool is the finished product of the sheep raiser. If all finished products are to go on the free list, wool should go too, but when the wool goes the sheep will follow, as they did in 1893. There will be one profitable industry less for the farmers of the United States.

Assaults upon the Tariff are beginning to bear fruit. Last year our Monroe County farmers at this time sold their wool for 25 cents. Now they are selling it for 13 cents. Proposed free wool is already affecting the price.

The grim reaper has called on the printing fraternity once more, and this time it is Walter Pomroy, of the Hawaiian Gazette Company, who has answered the call. Aloha, Walter, we all miss you.

President Wilson insists on free wool and free sugar. The point is to establish the Free-Trade principle, and against that the people have given a majority in all of the last five presidential elections.

We wonder who the next newspaperman to be appointed by Wilson will be. It is no good, Woodrow, the newspapers cannot help you any.

Why should Maui's grand reputation for good roads be injured by short stretches of fierce thoroughfare?

If Roosevelt had been elected President would Mexico now be a part of the United States?

SUNRISE IN HAWAII.

(By "Paia.")

At last I close my weary eyes,
And dream of it until sunrise
And then I look into the East,
And see another scenic feast
Of silvery edge, and snowy white,
O'er green mountains fresh and bright
Defying painters and their art.
'Tis free for all—come take your part,
Come, let us share these scenes with you
'Tis Old Hawaii, Earth's paradise,
Where men and women realize,
That art can ne'er portray,
The grandeur at the close of day.

New Theater at Lahaina

Over at Lahaina the new theater that is being completed by the Pioneer Hotel Company, under the supervision of Manager George Freeland, is attracting much attention. And well it might for, not even in Honolulu, have they a better show house. The place is up-to-date in every respect, and is a credit to the ancient capital of the group.

The Pioneer Theater is a large roomy building, and is well fitted out for the purpose for which it is intended. The stage is 45 by 20 feet and is large enough to put on the most ambitious productions. The scenery is excellent and drops, wings, interiors and garden scenes abound.

The floor of the house is sloping and is provided with features that will allow of proper Japanese shows being given as well as those of the haole variety. The gallery is a fine roomy one, and the operating room is absolutely fire-proof. The machine for projecting pictures is of the very latest type and the focus is 56 feet.

To insure good ventilation, the whole of the walls are open at the top, where wire is installed. There are plenty of exits and, in fact, the whole of one side of the house can be thrown open in a second, thus allowing the theater to be emptied in two minutes.

Fine, comfortable chairs are provided and they are very different to the ordinary moving picture house seats. The whole place is fitted out for electric lights and will be in full swing on July Fourth.

Habits of plants analogous to the right-handedness and left-handedness of man have been reported to the Cambridge, England, Philosophical Society by R. H. Compton.

In an examination of eight varieties of two-rowed barley the first leaf was found to twist to the left in 58 per cent. of more than 12,000 seedlings, and an excess of left-handed growth was found also in millet and in oats.

In corn there seemed to be no marked tendency either way. No evidence of hereditary peculiarity appears to have been obtained and no special significance of the results is pointed out.
